Combating Cancel Culture One Deck at a Time

Has cancel culture gone too far?

Typically, when we don't understand someone, our default is to distance, shame, blame or fix them. In a media driven world of click bait, news headlines, and faceless data, misunderstanding is the norm, when what we really need is empathy. It's easy to forget that behind every statistic is the story of someone searching for love and belonging. LikeU cards serve as a tool to aide in what we believe is the most impactful form of activism - storytelling. We created this game to help people become students of other people's stories, to remind others that the most powerful words besides I love you, are me too.

Conversation Starter

Take turns reading the question from either the yellow or blue track out loud. All players have to answer each question. We encourage you to share personal narratives related to each question

Prediction

Place all of the cards face down in a pile. The players will take turns choosing a card, and reading a question from either the yellow or blue track out loud. The group will attempt to answer the question for the person who drew the card.

Suggested Ways to Play

LikeU is a card game that allows players to see what they have in common through a combination of both light-hearted and thought-provoking questions.

There is no right or wrong way to play the game!

Since we believe in the power of play and imagination, we encourage you to imagine new ways to play the game with friends, partners, colleagues, teammates, and even complete strangers.

We've included some suggested ways to play here!

Writing Prompt

Pick any card. Choose either the question in the yellow box or in the blue box. Write a journal entry, short story, or poem (real or fictional) that answers the question.
